

ORAL HISTORY PARTICIPATION AGREEMENT

The purpose of this form is to explain how the recorded interview which you agree to undertake with us is archived at Birkbeck, University of London. When you sign this form, you are agreeing to take part in the interview and allowing us to store and make use of your personal data now and in the future in order to administer and archive your interview. After your interview we will ask you to complete an Oral History Recording Agreement to sign-off the terms under which your interview will be accessible at Birkbeck and through Birkbeck's online repository.

The collection to which you are contributing

You have been invited to take part in the Úna Gan A Gúna: Irish Women's Digital History Project. Information about the project and the oral histories is in the Information Sheet provided to you. Please take the time to read this carefully and ask the interviewer any questions you might have. You will be given a copy of these documents to keep and refer to at any time.

Your personal data

The General Data Protection Regulation [GDPR] came into effect on 25 May 2018, and its implementing legislation, the Data Protection Act 2018, has changed the way in which we inform you about how your personal data is stored and processed, and how you can get access to it. For information about how Birkbeck will use your personal data you can review the Birkbeck Privacy Policy at <http://www.bbk.ac.uk/downloads/policies/privacy-research.pdf>. The Úna Gan a Gúna privacy policy is at <https://unaganaguna.org/take-action>.

What we will do with your personal data

The data contained within this form will be held securely and not shared with anyone, unless Úna Gan A Gúna is obligated to do so for legal purposes, such as evidencing ownership or demonstrating a valid Agreement. The information contained within the interview itself will be made available (subject to your agreement) through the Birkbeck archive and Úna Gan a Gúna website to researchers, academics and other members of the public who access oral history content. We will keep this data in perpetuity, so as to preserve the oral history and inform the research of future generations.

You can request partial or complete closure of your interview to public access using the Oral History Recording Agreement which you will complete after your interview has been completed. You can request a copy of the personal data we hold about you at any time.
